SECTION C

There are eight (8) spelling errors in the following passage. Read the passage first. Then fill in the ovals under the words which have been spelt INCORRECTLY.

Fill in only EIGHT ovals. If you fill in more than eight ovals, only the first eight will be marked.

It is another beautiful day in my garden. I crunch through the autum leaves scattered across the concreat path and glance up at the early morning light flickering through the branches of the mango tree. If I listen carefully, I can hear the faint whistle of a bird. In the distance the mountain tops are peeping over the mist. On the ground ants are busy carrying food to their nest.

The temprature has dropped and my favrite jacket and scarf barely keep out the icy wind.
I start to shiver. Eventually I reach the shed. The creaking door swings open and I gather up an armful of firewood. On my return I pause briefly to inspect the vegetable patch. The pumkins are almost ripe. This reminds me that my stomach is rumbling with hunger.
I'm looking forward to the warmth of the kitchen and a delisious plate of scrambled eggs.

SECTION D

For questions 37 to 45 read the following passage. The nine (9) words in the shaded boxes are spelt incorrectly. Print each word CORRECTLY next to the matching number.

The protesters held their banners high. I followed their progress as I was playing cricket and wondered why they wanted to preserve those few eucalyptus trees behind our school. The 37. preposal was for a new 38. sinnema complex – phenomenal!

I dragged my attention back to see Joe 39. lornching the ball like a 40. projektile into space. I hurdled over the fence in 41. pursoot and slipped and tumbled down a slope. Coming to an undignified stop, I 42. shreiked! My face was centimetres from an echidna. It was so 43. terrorfied it scuttled off. The poor creature's escape was blocked by a 44. cuwrious goanna that had come to see what the fuss was about.

I raced back to school, straight to the art room. I took out some cardboard and started to paint 'Save our 45. willdaness!'
