At dawn I clamber into the old wooden rowing boat and set off with fishing tackle, sandwiches and a flask of hot tea. As I make my way across the shimmering lake, I am fortunate enough to observe a spectacular sunrise. I drop anchor forty metres from shore, attach the bait to the hooks, throw in the lines and settle down to enjoy the morning.

Apart from the occasional cry of a seagull and the whisper of a warm westerly breeze, there is no sound. A cloudless sky, lush paddocks and a series of jagged mountains in the distance create a breathtaking scene.

The silence is suddenly disturbed by the noise of flapping wings. A pelican dives into the water and plucks out a tiny fish. I watch as it soars above me and heads towards the horizon. Unexpectedly it changes direction, flies back and swoops again, but this time it snatches my breakfast!
