

NARRATIVE

A narrative has three main features:

- one or more characters who do things that move the story along,
- a setting or a time and place in which the events occur, and
- a plot or a series of events that develop into a problem for the characters.

WRITING TASK

Write a story that has a series of events that develop into a problem or complication. This problem or complication does not need to be resolved.

Choose one setting and one object from the list below. Make choices that you can use to create an interesting and engaging story.

First, choose ONE setting (where some or all of the action happens):

Then, choose ONE object:

Make the setting and object you have chosen important for the characters and the problem they face.

- Your writing should make the reader interested in what is happening. Create a sense of drama and excitement.
- Choose words that describe the setting and show what the characters are doing and how they feel. Your story and your word choices should give readers an idea of what kind of people your characters are.
- You do not have to finish the story.
